Scenario building - planning for a future with HIV/AIDS. A tool for political and socio-economic dialogue AIDS presents long term problems - both in its impact and in its possible solutions. Taking the long-term view on the impacts of the epidemic, of policy decisions and through engagement with key stakeholders will be critical to ensure a dialogue on the political, social and economic basis. Building scenarios enables such a dialogue. The workshop is aimed at professionals in the private and public sectors and from NGOs. It will guide participants through a methodology of building and using scenarios as well as how to work with existing scenarios. The sessions will be interactive and strengthened by the high-calibre of experienced and skilled participants.

Conference ‘What is Masculinity? How useful is it as a Historical Category?’ Birkbeck College, University of London (15-16 May, 2008)

In recent years, there has been an explosion in scholarship that questions masculinity in history. This vibrant new approach has incorporated many different theoretical and empirical considerations in historical scholarship. This conference aims to provide a discussion across fields and time period specialism. We hope the conference will provide discussion of the latest thinking, debates and contention in this field, and that it will serve as a review of ‘where we are now’ in terms of scholarship in the field of masculinity studies. The highest quality papers in this conference will be published in a single volume collection, by Palgrave Macmillan

CALL: Conference: Exploring Religious Spaces in the African State: Development and Politics from Below (9– 10 April 2008, Edinburgh)

Organised by Centre of African Studies, University of Edinburgh and WISER, The Wits Institute for Social and Economic Research

Religious institutions have been at the forefront of human welfare for centuries. In Africa it is often difficult to untangle religious organisations from the agency of development. Religion, rather than declining as had been predicted with the advent of secular development, is taking an increasingly central and vibrant role in African political and developmental life. The African case demonstrates how secularisation theories had failed in assuming that in a modernising context the non-secular would gradually recede from public life. The reality is the non-secular in Africa is often pervading the spaces that the secular has singularly failed to address. Contemporary critiques of development theory assert that 'development' poses solutions to development problems in a peculiarly apolitical, antiseptic, neutral way. It fails to provide solutions that encompass human needs; food security and shelter is materially important but so is a sense of community and belonging.

In Africa the 'faith' dimension is important and plays a significant role in promoting non-governmental public action. Religious organisations and faith communities have wide networks, social resources and often unique access to people who are poor, marginalised and excluded. Religious organisations represent a particularly significant component of civil society; and faith-based development has strong ethical foundations that become particularly important in the absence of alternative worldviews, social norms and political ideologies.

This conference aims to understand the role of religion within development and politics and develop our understanding of the role and position of religious organisations and actors within more traditional conceptualisations of public action and its relationship to the state in Africa. The focus will be on Christian, Muslim and traditional religious organisations and institutions in, for, and against the political and broader development processes in post-colonial Sub-Saharan Africa.

The conference will be organised around the following tentative themes:

1. Filling the vacuum of the African state: tension or collaboration?

This theme aims to explore the relationship between religious organisations and the African state. How do religious organisations define their role in the post-colonial state? How do religious organisations critique or plug the gaps in the so-called 'weak' African state? How do religious organisations cope with prejudices and forms of control from secular organisations?

2. Faiths and development: religion and modernity

This theme aims to explore the relationship between religious organisations and development. How do religious actors and ideas contribute to development in contemporary Africa? Can we speak of a unique 'religious' answer to development? How do religious organisations forge their own identity as development is becoming increasingly technical, technology-led and driven by agendas such as the Millennium Development Goals?

3. Faiths and responses to health crises: the case of HIV/AIDS

This theme aims to examine the major contributions religious organisations are making in the battle against HIV/AIDS. How do religious organisations negotiate the problematic relationships between public health, religious doctrine and political discourse? What role do different kinds of religious organisation play in providing healthcare? What is the relationship between religious organisations, the state and development agencies with respect to healthcare?

Call for papers: abstracts should not exceed 300 words

All the abstracts should be submitted not later than 10th December 2007.

All the abstracts should be emailed to the Centre of African Studies at: African.studies@ed.ac.uk

Successful applicants will receive an answer by 15 January 2008

CALL: "Hierarchy and Power in the History of Civilizations"

June 16-19 2009, Moscow, Russia

Panel proposals (within 500 words in any of the Conference working languages) which will be received by February 1, 2008.

Organised by the Center for Civilizational and Regional Studies of the Institute for African Studies under the Russian Academy of Sciences in co-operation with the School of History, Political Science and Law of the Russian State University for the Humanities.

The aim of the Conference, like that of the four previous ones, is to bring together the researchers doing the respective problematics in the whole variety of its contexts, within the framework of different academic schools and traditions from the positions of a wide range of disciplines: social anthropology, archaeology, history, political science, sociology, philosophy, psychology, etc.

The objective of the Conference is to discuss the following issues:

- hierarchical and net structures in the history of cultures and civilizations;
- civilizational and evolutionary models of socio-political development;
- historical and ethno-cultural variability of the forms of socio-political organization;
- from simple societies to the world-system: pathways and forms of political integration;
- socio-political and cultural-mental factors of social transformations;

- cultural and socio-biological foundations of dominance in human societies;
- ideology and legitimation of power in different civilizational contexts;
- cultural models of power's perception in different civilizations;
- violence and non-violence in the history of political institutions;
- access to information as a means of political manipulation and mobilization;
- power, society, and culture in the era of globalization;
- the study of 'hierarchy and power': schools, trends, and methods.

Suggestions for discussion of any other aspects of the general problematics of the Conference reflected in its title, are also welcomed.

The working languages of the Conference are Russian and English.

The Conference participant-s registration fee is 150 euros (or the equivalent sum in US dollars or Russian rubles) which includes the visa application support at the Russian Foreign Ministry,*1 culture program, Conference Book of Abstracts, reception, coffee-breaks, is to be paid on the spot upon arrival. The fee for an accompanying person is 70 euros (or the equivalent sum in US dollars or Russian rubles) includes the visa application support at the Russian Foreign Ministry and participation in culture program. Conference: African Film Conference, (9-10 November 2007)

at Center for African Studies, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign

The African film conference in Urbana-Champaign will explore how an appreciation of films as mode of expression and form can be combined with an understanding of their content. Cinema has a more pronounced public dimension than some of the other arts; it creates an audience and depends on it for its survival, and filmmaking itself can be situated within the history, economy, politics, and broader cultural trends of postcolonial Africa. The conference will aim to foster a dialogue between film scholars, critics, and the social science interpreters, users, and enthusiasts of African films, and will try to achieve, among other things, a greater sensibility for film as a medium among the latter.

A subset of related themes involve the connections to international film making styles or to the ethnographic and documentary film traditions, including considerations of emerging regional and national styles within Africa.

Call: The 17th Annual African/Diaspora Conference: African Youth in America & Africa: Bridging the Gaps - 1 – 3 May 2008 (Deadline for abstract 29 November 2007)

California State University, Sacramento, The college of Health & Human Services, The Center for African Peace & Conflict Resolution
& The Pan African Studies Program

This conference examines the state of African youth in the USA and Africa, with a focus on discussing inter- and intracultural and group challenges, including crime and other conflicts. Together, we will examine the prospects for bridging the gaps among African youth, as well as identify best practices and models for youth empowerment, leadership development, crime prevention, networking, and family stability.

We strongly encourage submission of paper proposals that are based on case studies and best practices on domestic and international youth issues: e.g. youth development and leadership, peer relations, U.S.-African youth study abroad exchanges, community outreach, crime prevention and peace building/peacemaking, peace education, African youth parenting; family; art expression, media and value formation, African-African American relations, girl-child education; Child soldiers; youth gangs/cults; etc.

Please include the following in your proposal: name, current position and institutional affiliation, paper title, abstract (75 words maximum), your mailing address, email, phone and fax number.

You will be notified of acceptance by email, plus any publication guidelines. Selected papers will be considered for publication and inclusion in the conference proceedings. We prefer presentations in English; but can accommodate French speakers. The preliminary conference program will be available in February at: www.csus.edu/org/capcr.

Participants are responsible for the conference registration fee of U.S. $50, plus their travel costs. Please email/fax/mail your proposal to:

⌘ CARRIBEAN

ASWAD CONFERENCE (Association for the Study of the Worldwide African Diaspora) (9-12 October 2007)

The University of the West Indies, Cave Hill, Barbados is hosting the conference as its Signature Program for the year, with co-sponsorship from New York University.

In commemoration of the Bicentennial of the British and American Abolition of the Transatlantic Slave Trade, the theme of the conference is INTERROGATIONS OF FREEDOM: MEMORIES, MEANINGS, MIGRATIONS.

The conference will be research driven, featuring panels organized in ways which effectively stimulate discourse across geographic, disciplinary, cultural, and theoretical boundaries. All geographic areas will be represented, including Africa, the Middle East, Europe and Asia. Paper and panel proposals that incorporate gender and women as categories of analysis are encouraged.

1. African Renaissance: a bi-monthly, multidisciplinary international journal published since 2004, has launched a book programme. Under the programme, the journal, which is a cross between an academic publication and any higher-end policy-oriented report, will publish every year 5-6 books based on contributions to the journal. The book programme has already started (see some of the titles in "Forthcoming Titles below). Usually an editor is appointed to edit each volume, and the editor asks authors of selected contributions to update/expand/beef up/revise their contributions - as the case may be.

For previous issues of African Renaissance, see:

EDITORIAL SERIES

□ AEGIS/Brill Editorial series

Following the success of the 2005 AEGIS-sponsored European Conference of African Studies □ the largest ever African Studies conference in Europe, AEGIS seeks to provide a new and much-needed venue for the publication of works drawn from the lively and expanding community of scholars with interests in Africa and its Diaspora.

The Series aims to publish books within the broad fields of study within the humanities and social sciences that would bring new approaches or innovative perspectives to the topics discussed. Titles will comprise works that could also reflect established debate within African Studies if they provide new insights.

Both individually-authored works and edited collections on focused themes will be considered. Included among Series authors will be both senior and junior scholars and preference may be given to newly established scholars that may benefit from this new outlet for publication.

The Series operates according to an academic review and publication process. Books will be released simultaneous in hardback and paperback editions. Discounted purchase prices will be offered to AEGIS members as well as to scholars in Africa.

Authors are requested to submit a prospectus (of no more than 1000 words) providing a summary of the work, a description of its intended audience, a word count, and the current status of the manuscript.

The first Deadline for submission of prospectus is 30 November 2007.

The prospectus should be accompanied by a brief cover letter and CV, and sent to:

AEGIS Brill Africa Book Series
attn: Angelica Baschiera
Centre of African Studies
School of Oriental and African Studies
University of London
Thornhaugh Street
Russell Square
London WC1H 0GX
United Kingdom

Manuscripts, in part or in whole, should not be sent until specifically requested by the editors.

□ Africa in Development Series with Peter Lang International Academic Publishers

While African Development remains a preoccupation, policy craftsmen and a multiplicity of domestic and international actors have been engaged in the quest for solutions to the myriad problems associated with poverty and underdevelopment.

This series is designed to encourage innovative thinking on a broad range of development issues. Thus its remit extends to all fields of intellectual inquiry with the aim to highlight the advantages of interdisciplinary perspective.

The series welcome proposals from collected papers as well as monographs from recent PhDs no less than from established scholars.

Book proposals should be sent to the Editor Dr J Senghor: jcsenghor@yahoo.com

⌘ FUNDING

Full Economic Costing

The British Academy has been given resources by its funding body, the Office of Science and Technology (OST), to meet 80% of the Full Economic Costs (FEC) of research in four schemes:

- Research Leave Fellowships
- Postdoctoral Fellowships
- Larger Research Grants
- Visiting Fellowships

The remaining schemes are exempt from the FEC regime. The Academy has, however, been invited by the OST to collect robust data on the Full Economic Costs of research carried out under the Small Research Grants scheme, and the various international schemes, with a view to bringing these programmes within the FEC environment at a later stage. The Academy will be most grateful for the cooperation of the UK academic community in gathering this information.

The British Academy has introduced a new scheme for mid-career scholars to enable them to develop a significant research project. The British Academy Research Development Awards (BARDA) scheme replaces the previous programmes for Research Leave Fellowships and Larger Research Grants. Applications are particularly encouraged from scholars who can demonstrate that they are developing an innovative line of research, with the potential to make a significant difference to their field and to their career profile. Awards are tenable for up to three years, at up to £150,000 FEC. The deadline for applications is 15 October 2007 for awards to be taken up after April 2008. Awards will be announced at the end of March 2008.

Details and application forms are available from www.britac.ac.uk/funding/guide/barda.html

Contact: Research Grants Department 020 7969 5217 or email: grants@britac.ac.uk

Also from the British Academy:

(1) Postdoctoral Fellowships

The British Academy invites applications for Postdoctoral Fellowships, tenable for three years. The scheme is designed to enable outstanding early career researchers to strengthen their experience of research and teaching in a university environment, which will develop their curriculum vitae and improve their prospects of obtaining permanent lecturing posts by the end of the Fellowship. The deadline for outline submissions is 15 October 2007.

Further details and application forms are available from

British Institute of East Africa: Graduate Training Scheme

The British Institute supports research into the later archaeology, anthropology, languages, cultures and history of Eastern Africa. The Graduate Training Scheme enables recent graduates with good degrees to spend a short period in the region. Applicants must have completed a BA or Master degree and should in the first instance submit an application to the Centre of African Studies, Oxford: african.studies@sant.ox.ac.uk

African Studies Visiting Research Fellowships Scheme 2008-09, University of Cambridge

The Centre of African Studies invites applications for Visiting Research Fellowships around the theme of Peace-building and Transitional Governance in Africa from candidates in all the disciplines in the humanities and social sciences. Applications from scholars working in NGOs, research institutes, academia, libraries, and museums are all welcome. Applicants from non-English speaking African countries are also encouraged, provided candidates can demonstrate a competent grasp of English. The appointments will take place from 1 October 2008 – 31 March 2009 and are non-renewable. Fellows will be affiliated to Wolfson College, Cambridge. Each award is worth a total of £10,000; out of which travel, accommodation, maintenance costs and medical insurance will be paid by the Centre on behalf of the fellow.

The closing date for applications is 1 October 2007

The recent establishment of institutions such as the African Union (AU) and the United Nations Peacebuilding Commission provide renewed hope that the challenges aggravated by conflict in Africa will be addressed through new ideas and approaches. The perceived flaws in previous efforts have triggered a reconceptualisation of peacebuilding to include issues of security, development and governance. Nonetheless, the connections between peace and governance are still poorly understood. There may, for instance, be a tension between the types of governance arrangements and institutions that help end conflict in the short term, and those that are likely to bring about peace and development in the longer term. Yet institutions established in the immediate aftermath of conflict help shape popular expectations, and may constrain future possibilities for peace. There is a need to investigate the motivations behind diverse kinds of governance arrangements and political and economic practices, as well as their impact. The group of scholars who come to Cambridge under this fellowship scheme will research the possibilities and challenges of peacebuilding in contemporary Africa. A range of issues can be addressed under this theme, for instance transitional justice and accountability; institutions and the nature of the state; gendered peacebuilding practices; contests over citizenship in post-conflict environments; the impetus and effects of economic reforms; the role of “indigenous” institutions; religion and peacebuilding; and tensions underlying democratisation. We welcome projects that question the concept of “transition”, and that explore the nature of “peace” as well as the relationship between international programmes and ideas and local practices. Projects that analyse alternative approaches to peacebuilding are also strongly encouraged.

The Martin Lynn Scholarship.

Thanks to the generosity of the family of the late Martin Lynn, the Royal Historical Society has pleasure in announcing the establishment of an annual award in his memory. Martin Lynn was Professor of African History in the Queen's University, Belfast, the first scholar to hold a chair in African history in Ireland. His scholarly career was devoted to the history of West Africa and he published most extensively and importantly on the 19th and 20th century history of Nigeria. His scholarly achievements were matched by the reputation he enjoyed as an exciting and concerned teacher and a delightful, generous colleague and friend.

This new award reflects the interests of the man it commemorates. Annually the Society will make an award of up to £1,000 to assist an historian pursuing postgraduate research on a topic in African history. Eligible students will be registered with a university history department in the United Kingdom and will have successfully completed their first year of full time or first two years of part-time study by the time the award is taken up. Applicants intending to use the award to carry out research within Africa will be especially welcomed.

The closing date for applicants will be May 31st, 2007. Potential applicants should use the form on the Society's website, www.rhs.ac.uk.

Leverhulme Trust, UK

The Leverhulme Trust invites applications from teams of established researchers for its research programme grants. Programmes should explore significant issues in the social sciences, in the humanities and, to a lesser extent, in the sciences.

- 1) 100 Research Fellowships whose deadline is 4 pm on Thursday 8 November 2007

- 2) 20 Studentships whose deadline is 4 pm on Tuesday 8 January 2008

- 3) 15 Study Abroad Fellowships whose deadline is 4 pm on Thursday 8 November 2007

Please note that while applications for Research Fellowships can only be made on the electronic online application system, for (2) and (3) above, applications by fax or email cannot be accepted.

The Trust also invites applications for the following awards:

Research Awards	Closing Date
Research Fellowships	8 November 2007
Study Abroad Fellowships	8 November 2007

SOAS SCHOLARSHIP

The AHRC 2007 annual postgraduate competition is now open. The closing date for the next competition is 1 May 2008. However, please note that SOAS has its own internal deadlines, which are detailed below and also on our scholarships website: www.soas.ac.uk/scholarships. Applicants to SOAS can apply for awards through the Research Preparation Master's Scheme, the Professional Preparation Master's Scheme (Taught Masters) or through the Doctoral Awards Scheme (Research). Funding is no longer available for students who only want to do a Masters programme. Applications may only be submitted where the applicant intends to continue with further research or professional practice and this must be demonstrated in the application.

Applicants must hold a formal offer of a place at SOAS before an application for an award can be forwarded to the AHRC but applicants should not wait for a decision on their application before beginning the AHRC application process. If AHRC applicants have not already applied for a place at SOAS they should do so without delay. Competition for all AHRC awards is extremely fierce, and most successful applicants in the Masters schemes will have a good first class degree. Applicants in the Doctoral Awards scheme are normally expected to have, or to be undertaking, a Masters degree or similar qualification, or to have already begun a research programme.

The AHRC expects applicants to consult the documentation on the website (<http://www.ahrc.ac.uk/>), and to download the Guide for Applicants and the application forms. Full instructions are given in the “Notes on completing the application forms”, which is downloadable with the application form. They have not supplied us with printed copies of the application material.

All applications must be at the AHRC by 1 May 2008. Late Applications will not be accepted. The track of the application form should be: applicant to referee 1 to referee 2 to Head of SOAS Department or Programme Convenor to Scholarships Officer (SOAS Registry) to AHRC

Applications must reach the Scholarships Officer, SOAS, Registry, Thornhaugh Street, Russell Square, London, WC1H 0XG after SOAS academic departments have added their supporting statements by April 2008 in order to allow time for checking, resolution of any queries or problems (particularly concerning evaluation of overseas qualifications or UK/EU status), photocopying and posting to the AHRC.

Fellowship from The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights(OHCHR) and the United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) have established a Human Rights Fellowship Programme for Students from Least Developed Countries (LDC).

The overall objectives of this project are:

To increase the understanding of the LDC fellows of current human rights issues at the international level and give them an insight into the work of the United Nations and OHCHR; and

To provide OHCHR and the United Nations human rights mechanisms with the assistance and contribution of outstanding students or graduates from LDCs.

To qualify for the fellowship, candidates from the countries listed below must be graduate students or holders of a graduate degree in a discipline related to the work of the United Nations (e.g. international law, political science, social sciences, history or other related topics).

Experience with or a specialization in human rights will be considered an asset. Candidates should be less than 30 years old at the time they send their candidature.

The 2008 fellowship is open to candidates from:

Afghanistan, Angola, Bangladesh, Benin, Bhutan, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cape Verde, Central African Republic, Chad, Comoros, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Djibouti, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Gambia, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Haiti, Kiribati, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lesotho, Liberia, Madagascar, Malawi, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mozambique, Myanmar, Nepal, Niger, Rwanda, Samoa, São Tomé and Príncipe, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Solomon Islands, Somalia, Sudan, Timor-Leste, Togo, Tuvalu, Uganda, United Republic of Tanzania, Vanuatu, Yemen, Zambia.

The 2007 fellowship will be run in English. The deadline for applications is 20 August 2008.

The Programme will consist of both training and practical exposure to the work of OHCHR. The training will be conducted in the form of seminars and debates that will allow for a maximum exchange of views. A significant part of the training will also be devoted to practical skills exercises that will strengthen the fellows' professional skills and abilities and help them to better adapt to the multicultural and international working environment of OHCHR. Once the training segment is completed, the fellows will be assigned to an OHCHR Branch. Upon the completion of their fellowship both the supervisor and the fellow will be required to complete a final report describing what was achieved during the fellowship. At the end of the Programme, every fellow will be requested to complete an evaluation questionnaire on his/her assignment and to share his/her feedback with the organizers.

Objects of Instruction: Treasures of the School of Oriental and African Studies (11 October-15 December 2007) is an important project aimed at publicising the School's remarkably rich but little known artistic and archival collections. Generously funded by the Foyle Foundation, the exhibition is set to culminate in a permanent display in the new Foyle Special Collections Gallery. For the first time this will make the artistic assets of SOAS accessible to a wider audience, including students, scholars, and members of the general public. The launch exhibition, which is due to open in October 2007, will bring together a broad range of interesting and beautiful objects from across Asia and Africa that are at present known only to a few specialists.

Among this wealth of material are illustrated Islamic manuscripts, including a luxurious Mughal copy of the Anvar-i Suhayli, a book of animal fables; Chinese and Japanese paintings and prints; varied ceramic objects from the Middle East and East Asia; decorative Buddhist manuscripts and sculptures from South-East Asia; contemporary African paintings and textiles; and important archaeological collections from East Asia, South Asia and the Middle East. Many of these objects are true treasures whose display is long overdue. The content will be periodically rotated, which will ensure the vitality and continued appeal of the permanent display.

Curator: Anna Contadini, in collaboration with the Brunei Gallery, the Department of Art and Archaeology, and the SOAS Library.

Inhuman Traffic: The Business of the Slave Trade

Until 06 April, Room 69a

This small exhibition explores how the Transatlantic Slave Trade functioned. It covers more than 500 years, including the Parliamentary Abolition of the Slave Trade in 1807. It features resistance leaders including Toussaint l'Ouverture, Olaudah Equiano and Nanny of the Maroons, and their continuing legacy of the struggle to end enslavement.

Admission free

⌘ National Gallery

'Scratch the Surface' is part of the National Gallery's contribution to a range of activities and events commemorating the 200th anniversary of the 1807 Act to abolish the British trade in African people. Although the Act did not end slavery itself, it was the first attempt by the British to legally bring the trade to a close.

In this exhibition we examine the role that the slave trade played in the lives of two people featured in portraits in our collection: Zoffany's portrait of 'Mrs Oswald' and Sir Joshua Reynolds's 'Colonel Tarleton'.

Colonel Tarleton, as MP for Liverpool in the 1790s, argued very strongly in Parliament against the abolition of the trade. Mrs Oswald, along with her husband Richard Oswald, owed part of their wealth to a number of plantations in the Americas. The painting of Mrs Oswald was bought by the Gallery in 1938, while the Tarleton portrait was bequeathed to the Gallery by one of his descendants in the early 1950s.

As part of the exhibition, 2004 Turner Prize nominee, Yinka Shonibare MBE, has been invited to create a new installation in response to these two portraits. This stunning new work will go on display in the Barry Rooms.

Other events commemorating the anniversary include related film screenings and Talks at 1pm every Wednesday in September explore Scratch the Surface. Highlights include Yinka Shonibare, MBE, discussing the creation of his installation (5 September), and an exploration of the politics of dress, with exhibition costume maker Mary Charlton.

Some areas of the Gallery will be closed for staff training on Monday mornings until 11am.

Godfrey Donkor's installation Financial Times is conceptually multilayered. Made up of a sequence of interconnected paintings set against a wallpaper backdrop, he uses the familiar icon that is the Financial Times newspaper as both an artists' canvas and as a mechanism with which to draw the audience in to his almost imperceptible symbolism. Born in Ghana and brought up in the UK, Donkor trained at the prestigious St. Martin's College of Art before working in Europe, America and the Caribbean. Having produced and exhibited all over the world he's now focussing on taking his unique brand of visual art to his native Ghana.

Financial Times, Godfried Donkor's installation is on view as part of Abolition 07 at Hackney Museum, Technology and Learning Centre, 1 Reading Lane E8 1GQ until 27 October 2007.

Trade and Empire: Remembering Slavery is on at the Whitworth Art Gallery, University of Manchester, Oxford Rd, Manchester M15 6ER until 13 April 2008.

New Research Projects

Language and linguistic studies of Southern African languages

This BA-funded project involves SOAS, the University of Botswana, the University of KwaZulu-Natal and the University of Namibia and aims to provide a collaborative framework for research on the linguistics of Southern African languages so as to create a shared knowledge base, develop analyses, compare methodologies and to discuss perspectives for the future.

COMPETE

As global fossil energy resources become constrained, bioenergy is emerging as a major potential resource to supply the energy services currently provided by these fossil fuels. Africa and Latin America have, in theory, very large areas of land resources 'available' for bioenergy production. However, the production of biomass for energy on the scales necessary to supply significant shares of national and global energy provision, will result in very substantial impacts (positive and negative) on the ecosystems and cultures of these target regions. The protection of biodiversity, rural livelihoods and management of scarce water resources are critical considerations in any analysis of the potential for sustainable bioenergy provision.

The objective of this Competence Platform on Energy Crop and Agroforestry Systems - Africa (COMPETE) is to stimulate sustainable bioenergy implementation in Africa. COMPETE will establish a platform for policy dialogue and capacity building in the major multi- and bi-lateral funding organisations and key stakeholders throughout the bioenergy provision and supply chains.

The COMPETE partnership comprises 20 European and 23 non-European partners - 11 partners from 7 African countries, 3 regional African policy and financing bodies (African Development Bank; Food, Agriculture and Natural Resources Policy Analysis Network of Southern Africa; UEMOA - Biomass Energy Regional Program), 9 partners from Latin America and Asia - and the Food and Agriculture Organisation of the United Nations (FAO). The COMPETE project duration will be from January 2007 until December 2009.

For more information on the COMPETE project, please consult the website www.compete-bioafrica.net or contact Dr Rocio A Diaz-Chavez CEP Imperial College (r.diaz-chavez@imperial.ac.uk)

"The commodity chain of the household: from survey design to policy planning".

Drs Coast and Leone (LSE) and Dr Randall (UCL) are beginning a new project "The commodity chain of the household: from survey design to policy planning". It aims to establish how the concept of the household is defined and used in household surveys in sub-Saharan Africa and the implications of these definitions for analyses and policy-making, using Tanzania as a case study.

One strand of the methodology involves in-depth semi-structured interviews with household survey commissioners, producers and consumers - both national and international - to identify how the concept of the household is produced, understood and used at all different stages of the data production and use chain.

If you have been involved in the commissioning, design, implementation, or use of household survey data in sub-Saharan Africa, and would like to participate in the study, we would be interested in interviewing you. Please contact e.coast@lse.ac.uk

This work will be funded as part of the ESRC's Survey Design and Measurement Initiative
