Athens and beyond... cities in financial/economic/social crisis

‘How does a global financial crisis permeate the spaces of the everyday in a city?’

Saturday, 11 October, 6.00-9.00pm, at the Khalili Theatre, SOAS
Presented by CITY with crisis-scape and co-organised with RMF at SOAS

An exploration through film, presentations, and discussion of Athens, a city in crisis and under authoritarian control. Are the same features appearing, if less starkly but just as insidiously, elsewhere? What is to be done?

Contributions from:
• Costas Lapavitsas, economist, SOAS
• Lila Leontidou, geographer, Hellenic Open University
• Dimitris Dalakoglou, anthropologist, University of Sussex
• Antonis Vradis, geographer, University of Durham
• Adam Elliott-Cooper, geographer, University of Oxford
• Bob Catterall, editor, CITY
• Maria Kaika, geographer, University of Manchester Contents list for the special feature in CITY 18.4-5

Crisis-scape: Athens and beyond

Access these articles for free throughout October 2014 at www.tandfonline.com/ccit

Section 1: Future privatised

Crisis-scapes suspended: Introduction
by Antonis Vradis

Crisis and land dispossession in Greece as part of the global ‘land fever’ by Costis Hadjimichalis

Contesting speculative urbanisation and strategising discontents
by Hyun Bang Shin

Unravelling false choice urbanism by Tom Slater

Section 2: Future devalued

Infrastructural flows, interruptions and stasis in Athens of the crisis by Dimitris Dalakoglou & Yannis Kallianos

Is the crisis in Athens (also) gendered?: Facets of access and (in)visibility in everyday public spaces by Dina Vaiou

Strange encounters
by Jaya Klara Brekke

Section 3: The present fighting back

Emerging common spaces as a challenge to the city of crisis by Stavros Stavrides

The crisis and its discourses: Quasi-Orientalist attacks on Mediterranean urban spontaneity, informality and joie de vivre
by Lila Leontidou

Crisis, Right to the City movements and the question of spontaneity: Athens and Mexico City by Christy (Chryssanthi) Petropoulou

Section 4: Future reflected Ross Domoney and Giorgos Triantafyllou: an interview by Ross Domoney & Giorgos Triantafyllou

Ruinous city, ruinous time: Future Suspended and the science fiction of the present by Nasser Abourahme

What is to be done? Redefining, re-asserting, reclaiming and re-shaping land, labour and the city by Bob Catterall

www.city-analysis.net @routledgegpu
www.facebook.com/routledgegpu