

Revised undergraduate programme specification 2016/2017

School of Oriental and African Studies

The following information forms the programme specification at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. It gives definitive information relating to a programme of study and is written for a public audience, particularly prospective and current students. It is also used for other purposes such as initial programme approval, and is therefore produced at the start of the programme development process. Once approved, it forms the baseline information for all statements relating to the programme and is updated as approved amendments are made.

WHY CHOOSE THIS PROGRAMME?

(This information will be used for marketing purposes as summary information about the programme for prospective students. It should be written accordingly, using brief, headline statements and bullet points. The first section is standard text for all programme specifications and should therefore not be amended: subsequent sections should be completed by individual authors.)

Why study at SOAS?	SOAS is unique as the only higher education institution in the UK specialising in the study of Africa, Asia and the Middle East. The School also has the largest concentration of specialist faculty concerned with the study of these areas at any university in the world. SOAS is consistently ranked among the top higher education institutions in the UK and the world and it also offers a friendly, vibrant environment for students

What is special about this programme?	The BA Middle Eastern Studies and... is a three-year combined honours programme that offers students the opportunity to study the history and culture of the Middle East along with acquiring competence in one or more Middle Eastern Languages. The two-subject degree allows students to combine the study of the region of the Middle East with a specific discipline. All disciplines at SOAS are taught with a regional focus on Asia and Africa, and students will be able to choose courses in their second subject that supplement their interest in the Middle East as a region.
Who would it suit?	The BA Middle Eastern Studies and another subject is a three year programme that prepares you for a career working in, or in connection with, the Middle East. The degree is ideal for students who do not seek the intensive engagement with language demanded by the four- or three-year language degrees (BA Arabic, BA Turkish, BA Persian, BA Hebrew and Israeli Studies), or who, for whatever reason, are unable to leave the UK to study abroad for a year, but who desire a working knowledge of a Middle Eastern language to enhance their engagement with the diversity of Middle Eastern culture. Students graduating with this degree have opportunities to work in education, the Middle Eastern media, the BBC, in the press, the Civil Service and nongovernmental organisations, and wherever a knowledge of the Middle East is a key skill.
Programme structure	The BA Middle Eastern Studies and another subject three-year degree allows for the study of the Middle East in a broad context, with the possibility of focusing on culture, history or literature. In the two-subject degree students take each year two course units in Middle Eastern Studies and two units in their other subject. In year 1 students take an overview course on Middle Eastern literature or an

	introductory course on Arabic or Israeli culture. Additionally they take an optional module, which may consist of one of the three culture units above other than the one they chose, may be a language unit, or may be chosen from a list of optional units. They then take two modules from the other subject of their combined honours degree. In year 2 students must choose a module to the level of one unit between a module on the modern literatures of the Middle East and a module on the history of the Muslim world. In addition to this students may continue the language they started in year 1, may take another language at beginner's level, they may take the other module from the two history and literature modules offered above, or they may take a module from the list of optional modules; They then take two modules from the other subject of their combined honours degree. In year 3 students must choose either one 10,000 word Independent Study Project (ISP) on an approved Middle Eastern topic of their choice or modules to the level of one unit on the cinematic culture of the Middle East and North Africa. Additionally students may continue the language they started in year 1, may take another language at beginner's level, or they may take an optional module from the list of options. In addition students take two modules from the other subject of their combined honours degree.
Assessment summary	Assessment for language courses typically involves a balance between classroom tests and/or written coursework during the year, oral exam, and written exam. Assessment for culture courses typically varies between a 20/80 balance between coursework essays and final written exam, and 100% coursework essays. Consult the course convenor or the SOAS website for details of the assessment arrangement for each course.

PROGRAMME STRUCTURE AND REQUIREMENTS FOR GAINING AN AWARD

How will the student's study be structured? How will they achieve an award?
(The initial statement below is standard text regarding SOAS requirements relating to the structure and duration of programmes and requirements for gaining an award and should not be amended. Individual authors should then complete the programme structure diagram with information relevant to this programme.)

Structure, duration and requirements for gaining an award

SOAS has standard requirements relating to the structure and duration of undergraduate programmes and for the award and classification of these programmes. Details can be found at

<http://www.soas.ac.uk/registry/degreeregulations/file60378.pdf>

Programme structure diagram

Below is a structure diagram for this programme.

(To be completed by individuals completing the template. It is intended that the structure grid should provide a clear picture of the course units to be taken as the student progresses through the programme. The "status" column should indicate whether the course is "core", "compulsory" etc. The final column provides an opportunity for authors to add any further relevant information which might relate to options, prerequisites, pathways etc.)

TEACHING, LEARNING AND ASSESSMENT

What methods will be used to achieve the learning outcomes?

(Provide details of the teaching, learning and assessment methods to be used, cross-referenced to the learning outcomes given above (listing under the same four headings might be helpful). Audience awareness is again important in relation to language used. The following examples might provide general guidance:

Knowledge: subject knowledge is often developed through lectures and seminars, supplemented by directed study of texts/journal articles and by assignment or project work. Assessment is generally through unseen written examinations, but most assessment methods will require some demonstration of subject knowledge and understanding.

Intellectual (thinking) skills: skills such as analysis, synthesis, evaluation and application are often practised and demonstrated through active learning processes involving assignments or projects, and group learning activities (seminars/tutorials, workshops, fieldtrips etc). Assessment might utilise written examinations or problem-based exercises. Independent project work or research dissertations might be used to demonstrate subject-specific intellectual skills.

Subject-based practical skills: this will vary from discipline to discipline, but will generally require development through opportunities to practise the activity in an appropriate learning context (for example in a laboratory, studio or work placement). Workbooks/practice manuals might also be provided. Assessment of competence in exercising a practical skill must involve demonstration of it.

Transferable skills: skills that are readily transferable to employment and related contexts such as communication, teamwork etc can be developed through naturally arising opportunities within the curriculum or through work placements. Written communication will be enhanced through essay/dissertation writing or writing up projects. Oral communication can be developed in presentations and group work. Team working skills may be demonstrated and assessed through collaborative projects.)

QUALITY ASSURANCE AND ENHANCEMENT

(The following text is standard information common to all programme specifications and should not be amended by individuals completing the template except where indicated.)

SOAS has internal procedures to assure the quality of provision to be offered to students and to enhance the quality in the light of experience following delivery, taking into account the input of external experts and students. The procedures are set out in the School’s Quality Assurance Handbook and can be viewed at (<http://www.soas.ac.uk/add/qualityassurance/quality-assurance-handbook/>).

SOAS is also subject to periodic external review from bodies such as the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education and relevant professional and statutory regulatory bodies.

The procedures described in the Quality Assurance Handbook are in place to provide a high quality student experience for those choosing to study at SOAS, and student input and evaluation of their experiences is greatly valued. Students make an input to the ongoing development of their programmes, and the environment in which they operate, in a number of ways, including:

- formal student evaluation as part of the annual programme review;
- student representation on School committees at various levels (through the Students’ Union) where many relevant issues are discussed;
- end of degree feedback sessions.
